TENNESSEE ACCESS TO RECOVERY BACKGROUND, OVERVIEW AND GOALS

Access to Recovery is a Substance Abuse and Mental Health Services Administration (SAMHSA) federal discretionary grant which has its origins in the federal government's commitment to provide alcohol and drug treatment and recovery support services to more individuals in need. It incorporates the President's commitment to including the faith-based community in the provision of social services, to consumer choice, and to payment for services through vouchers.

Tennessee was one of more than sixty states, territories, and tribal organizations to apply to SAMHSA for this funding, and we were one of fourteen states and one tribal organization to be awarded funds. Tennessee was awarded $5.9 million annually for a three year project period for a total award of $17.8 million. Tennessee Access to Recovery will provide service vouchers to eligible consumers for treatment services and for recovery support services. Treatment services are targeted to eligible adults with a methamphetamine, crack cocaine, and/or cocaine abuse or dependence diagnosis. Recovery support services are targeted to eligible adults, regardless of substance of abuse/addiction, who require these services to support their recovery and/or to prevent relapse.

Goals of Tennessee Access to Recovery are as follows:

- 1) To expand consumer access to a wide array of treatment and recovery support services resulting in an increase in consumers served,
- 2) To assure consumer choice of provider through issuing payment vouchers for services,
- 3) To expand the array of treatment and recovery providers to include secular, faith-based, for-profit, not-for-profit, and government entities, and
